

MANTLE OF CHARITY DEAD GIRL'S SHROUD

Former Belle, Shot in Saloon
Brawl, Buried With Honor.

Past Forgiven by Citizens
Who Knew Her as Bride.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Kate Lamont, who was shot in a North Clark street saloon, and who was known as the "beauty of the north side levee," was buried in Chatham, Ontario, a town she left twelve years ago, as the beautiful and accomplished bride of Clarence Crabbie, a Chicago traction official.

A farewell more elaborate than most girls of the town had received was given when Kate left Chatham. She had been born in the town, and was the daughter of Frank Lamont, founder of the Chatham Gas Company and wealthy land owner. She was one of the most popular young women of the town and had received a good education.

When her body arrived at Chatham many of those who attended the funeral services at the station had been in the merry crowd that had faredwell to the bride twelve years ago.

Her Past Forgiven.

In spite of the career of the dead woman, well known men of the city arranged for the funeral and acted as pallbearers. Chatham was willing to forget the intervening years, and according to Kate Lamont the same respect she received before her departure.

Kate Lamont was in the Sheerin saloon, 105 North Clark street, when she was shot by Charles A. Moore, fifty-two years of age, formerly treasurer of the North Chicago Street Railway Company. The bullet was not intended for the woman, but for Horace A. Lechler, a bartender, with whom the woman was sitting at a table.

Moore and the woman had lived together for some time. A few weeks before she left him for Lechler. When Moore saw them in the saloon, he asked her to return to him. She refused. Lechler said something, and Moore drew a revolver. He shot twice, supposedly at Lechler. One bullet struck Kate Lamont. She died the next day, a "charity patient" at Passavant Hospital.

Her Fall Ignored.

All these facts were known to the people of Chatham when the body arrived there. In the group at the station were some of the best known citizens of the town. The Rev. Mr. Heston, pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of Chatham, conducted the service. There were only words of kindness for the girl. All reference to her life antedated the happy wedding party that had gathered at the station. There was nothing to recall the depths to which the woman had sunk in the underworld of Chicago.

Pallbearers at the funeral were: O. L. Lewis, attorney and city solicitor; P. S. Coate, manager of the Chatham Gas Company; R. L. Brackin, attorney and member of the school board; W. G. Richards, attorney and member of the school board; G. S. Heyward, superintendent of Imperial Oil Company; J. G. Kerr, attorney and city solicitor; tax-payer, and member of city council. The same persons who attended the funeral service had subscribed to a fund that she might be taken to Chatham for burial rather than be sent to the potter's field in Chicago. Burial was in the family lot, where the woman's father and mother had been buried.

Divorce, Then Degradation.

Kate Lamont met Clarence Crabbie, a former official of the North Chicago Street Railway Company, at a yacht race at Detroit in 1885. Their marriage followed soon. In 1899 Mr. Crabbie obtained a divorce. The next year Miss Lamont—she resumed her maiden name—returned to Chatham. She was warmly welcomed, and assumed her former position in the town.

Then the Lamont family met financial reverse. She returned to Chicago, and gradually at first, and more rapidly, drifted down the social scale, until, when shot, she was living with a bartender at 21 Clark street.

But, while Chatham was willing to forget her the last few years of her life, Chicago will not. Moore is held for her murder, and the woman's life will be laid bare in his trial.

KILLS 700 SHEEP; USED DYNAMITE

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 30.—An explosion of dynamite at John Linn's sheep camp in Trapper creek, Big Horn county, last night killed 700 sheep and completely destroyed camp wagons and other possessions of the camp.

The story of the outrage was told by a herder this morning, who said that a band of masked men raided the camp, and, after binding him securely, arranged for the work of destruction.

A similar attack was made upon a sheep camp in the Trapper creek section two years ago.

LITTLE OTTER BRIDGE STILL DAMS RIVER

ROANOKE, Va., April 30.—The collapse of the new bridge built of concrete and just finished across Little Otter river, between Roanoke and Lynchburg, carrying with it many hundreds of tons of concrete and earth, completely damming the river, has backed up the water to a distance of six miles. Engineers and a large force of laborers are on the scene, but have not been able to relieve the situation.

The old bridge, which crosses the stream just below the country for miles below will be swept by the flood if the dam breaks. The loss is estimated at half a million dollars.

When You Take Cold

One way is to pay no attention to it; at least, not until it develops into pneumonia, or bronchitis, or pleurisy. Another way is to ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. If he says, "The best thing for colds," then take it. Do as he says, anyway.

We publish the formulas of all our preparations.

INFANT LEFT IN ASH BARREL RESTORED TO CRAZED MOTHER

Little Cinderella Mikolie, Two Hours Old, Deserted by Parent, Who Declares She Did Not Know
What She Was Doing.

NEW YORK, April 30.—"You'd better call the baby Cinderella," said Dr. Leslie, looking down on Mrs. Mary Mikolie and her tiny girl on a cot in the Hudson Street Hospital.

The mother was shedding happy, repentant tears, and murmuring "Heaven forgive me; I did not know what I was doing. In her arms lay the baby, fast asleep.

Young Henry Elder, who lives at 140 Greenwich street, saw a group of persons around an ash barrel in Greenwich street. On the ashes lay a newly-born girl, yelling at the top of her small lungs.

Elder whipped off his coat, wrapped the infant in it, and ran to the Church Street Police Station.

Dr. Leslie was called. He said the baby had reached the mature age of two hours, and would live. While Dr. Leslie was chucking to the infant, the telephone rang.

"Send an ambulance to West and Murray streets," said Policeman Robins, on the phone. "A woman is dying." Dr. Leslie wrapped the baby in a horse blanket, and away went the ambulance. It was Mrs. Mikolie who seemed to be dying. The doctors saved her life by performing an operation on her the moment she reached the hospital. Then she gave her baby to her, and, smiling, she pressed it to her breast.

The mother said she is twenty-nine years old, and lately arrived from Australia, where she left her husband. "I was alone, penniless—ah, how I suffered! I did not know what I was doing," she said, brokenly. "But now I have her."

NEARLY MARRIED OWN DAUGHTER

NAGASAKI, Japan, April 30.—The disappearance of a wealthy merchant named Sakamoto from Osaka reveals a strange story.

Sakamoto was to have been married to a pretty girl of twenty. He was a widower, having married first twenty-two years ago, but after the birth of a daughter he quarreled with his wife and deserted her, and went to a northern province, where he built up a lucrative business. The deserted wife died two years later and the daughter was adopted by a family living in Osaka.

A few months ago Sakamoto retired from his business and went to Osaka to reside. There he became acquainted with this couple, and finally arranged to marry their supposed daughter. Only by chance did he discover that his intended bride was his own daughter. Sakamoto disappeared after leaving a substantial sum for the support of the daughter.

PET DOG BARKS AT CAT'S DANGER

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 30.—Mr. and Mrs. William Akers, of New York, have solved the mystery of the disappearance of a pet Angora cat which they had mourned since last October.

Mr. and Mrs. Akers have a summer home near this city. Their household pets consisted of a fine Angora cat and a fox terrier. When they were closing their summer home last fall the cat was missing and search for it was unavailable. As they were leaving the house the fox terrier ran back and forth to a bureau, barking loudly, but they paid no attention to it. They decided that the cat had been stolen.

When they arrived at the summer home Saturday the first thing the fox terrier did on entering the house was to run to the bureau and bark. Mr. Akers pulled open the large lower drawer and on a pile of clothing found the body of the cat. One of the family had closed the drawer without noticing the cat was in it.

FLOOD VICTIMS NUMBER 100,000

ODESSA, Russia, April 30.—Considerable loss of life and great property loss are reported to have resulted from the overflowing of the Dnieper, Danister, and Dvina rivers. Terrible suffering has occurred among flood victims who were driven from their homes.

It is estimated that fully 100,000 persons are homeless and almost without food. No figures are given as to probable deaths or the property loss.

A TORTURE TO EAT

Dyspepsia is no Longer a Simple Difficulty

to be outgrown by dieting and changed habits of life. It is a disease of the most formidable type, capable of resulting most disastrously. It attacks the very citadel of existence, depriving the organism of its proper nourishment, and bringing about retrograde changes of the most serious character. Indeed, it is no longer an opinion, but a clinical fact, that neglected cases of Dyspepsia invariably result in fatal diseases. Heart disease, Epilepsy, Cancer, and Consumption are often directly traceable to an early origin in the form of Dyspepsia, which might have been cured by proper treatment.

Of all the great scientific discoveries of the present age, the following prescription, as recommended by an eminent specialist, has proved to be of most value:

Tr. Cinchona Compound, 2 1/2 oz.; Kastor Compound, 1 oz.; Fluid Extract of Cascara Aromatic, 1 oz.

It is the latest and undeniably the greatest and most beneficial to the human race. This formula is not an accidental product, but it is a definite result, ardently desired and laboriously sought. Its discovery followed most intricate experiments, and most profound physiological research, conducted at great expense by men of the highest ability.

"Bought Learning Best--- If It Doesn't Cost Much"

Ethiopian Philosopher Saves Himself $5 by Clever Aphorism in Address to Police Court Judge.

A man with a ready wit is a man to be envied. History has given many examples of the value of the neatly turned epigram, the clever aphorism, or the timely jest.

History repeated itself in the Police Court when an Ethiopian philosopher named Charles Danglefield saved himself $5 by a clever address, ending with the maxim, "Bought learning is the best if you don't pay too much."

Charles, who, until his recent indiscretion, has always borne an excellent reputation, was brought into court some time ago charged with making an assault upon his wife. He was released on bail in order that he might pay a $50 fine which was imposed, and while out, he claims, another man swindled him out of $5 on the promise of arranging his case for that amount. He was brought into court and had his fine reduced to $40, in view of the trouble he had had. After stating that he would pay the fine, the defendant asked leave to address the court.

"Judge," he said, "Ah's a man what's worked hard. Ah done learned mah lesson, and Ah ain't never gwine ter make no mo' trouble. Ah ought ter thank yo' for teachin' me dis time, foah Ah believe in dat ol' sayin', 'Paid leahnin's d' best' when yo' doan pay too much. Thank yo', boss; Ah's finished."

The court was visibly touched by this appeal. The man had not attempted to whine and cry his innocence. He had stated frankly that he was sorry for his misdeeds for the past and thanked the court for the lesson that he had learned.

"It is seldom I hear a man talk like that," said his honor. "I sympathize with the man who must suffer because of himself after his repentance."

"Reduce that fine $5," he continued, to the clerk. Then, to the prisoner: "Good-by, my man; may you never have to come here again."

JEROME BEGINS INSURANCE INQUIRY

NEW YORK, April 30.—The fact that at least one well-known insurance man in this city has received a subpoena calling him to the district attorney's office became known today, and was taken as an indication that District Attorney Jerome has already begun or is about to begin "John Doe" proceedings to inquire into the charges of fraud and forgery made in connection with the recent elections of directors in the New York and Mutual Life Insurance Companies.

These charges have been in the hands of the district attorney since before the election in the Mutual, whose administration ticket has been declared elected. In the New York Life the votes have not yet been counted.

STOKES REBUKES CHURCH MEMBERS

CHICAGO, April 30.—In the lecture room of Normal Park Presbyterian Church, J. G. Phelps Stokes, the New York settlement worker, delivered a stinging arraignment of church members.

"All over the country," said the young man, "hundreds of thousands of men, women and children are dying and for no other reason than that other individuals, professed Christians, may profit by the disease and death of those whom they profess to love as their brothers."

"I will tell you why Christian people—church people—are in desperate among many of the victims of the industrial conditions. It is because of the insincerity and hypocrisy of the Christian people, who are responsible for the conditions that destroy their lives."

Malarial Mosquitoes

An Important Question Discussed

Can malaria be contracted in marshy localities independently of the mosquito? In an experiment made by the famous Manson, five healthy individuals lived for several summer months in a hut on the Roman Campagna. They were protected by mosquito netting, over doors, windows and bed. During the day they would go about unprotected, but from sunset to sunrise would remain in their mosquito-proof hut. At the end of the experiment all were in good health.

This experiment proves also that the night air is no more dangerous "can day air, but the real danger consists in the presence of infected mosquitoes of a species which seek their human food at night.

To be immune from the dreaded malarial parasite, you should take Elixir Babek, an anti-malarial tonic and specific for the destruction of the malarial parasite. A well-known New Orleans physician says that Elixir Babek has proven valuable in malaria where other preparations have failed.

Mr. J. Middleton, of Four Mile Run, Va., says: "I have used Babek for four years, both as a preventative and cure for malaria. It has never failed me. I would be obliged to change my residence, as I cannot take quinine in any of its forms."

Thousands testify to the benefit derived from Elixir Babek, and it stands to reason that it would not have attained the ripe age of twenty-five years, if it did not possess actual merit. Those who suffer with malaria, fever, ague, chills and kindred ailments, find Elixir Babek a reliable specific. Sold by all druggists in the bottles only. Be sure you get Elixir Babek.
